Introductory Note

This book is the beginning Student Book for the Tamazight (Middle Atlas or Central Moroccan Berber) course called Abrid. The course has four levels: Abrid 1 (Beginning Tamazight), Abrid 2 (Intermediate 1 Tamazight), Abrid 3 (Intermediate 2 Tamazight), and Abrid 4 (Advanced Tamazight). Each level has a Student Book and a Workbook. (A Teacher's Manual for each level also exists to give pedagogical instruction on how to teach the course.) Each level consists of about 25 lessons, which are timed to comprise about 40 one-and-a-half-hour sessions with a teacher.

The contents of the Student Book consist of various grammar explanations, basic vocabulary for the lessons, and some dialogues. These are all items that are covered in the course. While most of the grammar pages include explanations and most of the Tamazight is translated into English, this book is not designed as a self-study book. Thus, some of the pages make sense only in the context of a lesson as specified in the Teacher's Manual. The table of contents lists all the topics covered in the class. There is not necessarily a Student Book page which matches every subject listed. Rather, the table of contents gives you, the student, a general overview of where the course is going.

The course follows a logic that is built around the grammar of Tamazight, the main item giving structure to the course being the Tamazight verb. The purpose is to progress easily and steadily through the Tamazight grammar, going from easy to more complicated items, in a way that is easy to understand and useful also. The goal of this course is communication, for you to be able to use Tamazight in everyday life.

In this way it differs from many previous courses designed by universities for an academic setting. While some of their scientific precision may be lost, much of their linguistic terminology (as well as the phonetic system used to write the language) couldn't be understood by the average language learner in Morocco. The goal of this course is ease and usability. I do, however, refer to many items mentioned in these courses: the University of Wisconsin course and the University of Michigan course.

A deliberate choice has been made to do this course in Arabic script. No transcription system perfectly fits Tamazight (including Tifinagh, which over the years has had to add and change symbols and contains just as many modernly invented signs as the Latin and Arabic transcriptions of Tamazight). Arabic script is quite well-suited for the task. Also, the whole purpose of choosing Arabic script is communication (as opposed to academic research, historical, political, religious, or identity issues, which have motivated others' choices of other scripts). While Tamazight is still a spoken language, if you want to write in this language you can. Most Moroccans who are literate, however, are literate in Arabic script. Thus, I have written many notes to my Amazigh friends in Tamazight with Arabic script. Although they still have to sound out the words, since they've never seen these combinations of Arabic letters before, they are quickly able to read what I write. This is much less true for the average Moroccan in Latin script and almost non-existent (for at least another generation) in Tifinagh. But written communication in Tamazight between you and your Amazigh friends and acquaintances can begin today in Arabic script. Arabic script also best allows you to easily find a language helper who can read what is written in your lessons.

In this light, the previous course designed by the Peace Corps is a great improvement over the other university courses. It is practical and includes Arabic script, although the transcription errors and lack of short vowel signs and sheddas were so numerous that it was extremely confusing for a beginning student. I have, nonetheless, referred to their material numerous times and corrected the errors and inconsistencies.

Most studies in Tamazight are designed around one tribal group. Since regional variation is so great, this is understandable. However, this course is meant to apply to the whole area of Central Morocco. Yet, certain decisions regarding vocabulary, grammar, and pronunciation had to be made. In general, they reflect a “northern Middle Atlas” version, if such a thing can be said to exist. Since regional variation is such a major obstacle to learning Tamazight, this course is designed to get you to a level where the variation is no longer formidable and can be handled. Although the course teaches “one main way,” the burden is on you at each step to see what the people around you are saying and to adapt accordingly. Changes can be made in the course by the teacher to adapt to certain regions. Even the teachers must change some of their ways (since not every teacher is from the same tribe) so that the student can be given consistent teaching. The teachers are also supposed to increase in their knowledge of the tribal variations so as to broaden their outlook on the language and their ability to adapt the course to different students' needs and geographic location.

Audio material is available for each level in the Abrid course. For Abrid 1, the entire Student Book and Workbook (every Tamazight word) is on CD in MP3 format.

No doubt in a work of this magnitude there will be mistakes found in various places throughout the course. Certainly enormous effort has been made to minimize these, but mistakes are nonetheless unavoidable. Any corrections and suggestions are welcome.

The preparation of this course has taken about two years, and many thanks go to all those along the way who helped in numerous ways, especially the initial student guinea pigs, the teachers willing to be trained to use the course, and numerous language consultants (that is, everyday Imazighen willing to answer questions and talk about their language).

مَتَّا وَا؟	—	What's this (m.)?
مَتَّا تَا؟	—	What's this (f.)?
مَانِي _____؟	—	Where's the _____?
noun

The two words listed for "man" and for "dog" illustrate an important and very common regional pronunciation variation in Tamazight. The "g" sound and the "y" sound slide back and forth in many (but not all) words. (This is because phonetically the "g" and the "y" have the same mouth position. The only difference is that the "g" is a stop—that is, the tongue touches the roof of the mouth and stops the air flow—and the "y" is a fricative—that is, the tongue never completely blocks the air flow, so the sound can continue as long as the speaker wants it to.) Some regions more noticeably say a "g," while others prefer the "y." Even so, at times you may hear the same speaker use both a "g" and a "y" for the same word. At times you won't even be sure if the sound was a "g" or a "y"—it will seem as if it were a combination of the two or something in between. Adapt your speech to the people around you.

يون	—	1
يون or يُون
(yun) (yuwn) (yiwen)
سين	—	2
شَراض	—	3
رَبْعَة	—	4
خَمْسَة	—	5
سِتَّة	—	6
سَبْعَة	—	7
تَمْنِيَة	—	8
تَسْعَة	—	9
عَشْرَة	—	10

The numbers 4 and above are simply Moroccan Arabic. It is Soussi Berber that has a complete number system in Berber.

There is quite a bit of regional variation for the number "one." The above choices are basically one way to say the number, with three different pronunciations that you will hear. It will be easier for you to just choose one of them and stick with that. To be consistent, the written part of this course uses يون , but your teachers or those around you may use a different pronunciation. All are equally valid. In addition to this, Khenifra and 'Ain Luh use يوك , some areas in the southern portion of the Middle Atlas use إِنْج , and still others use يان .

When two of the same consonants are written together, this corresponds to the phenomenon of the shedda in Arabic—a holding of the consonant sound twice as long. Thus, ili is pronounced differently than illi.

the superscript <sup>w</sup>

This is used when the preceding consonant is pronounced with rounded lips. The effect on the English speaker is that he often hears a "w" sound. Example: asgg<sup>w</sup>as 'year.' This applies to the following sounds: g<sup>w</sup>, k<sup>w</sup>, and more rarely ġ<sup>w</sup>, q<sup>w</sup>, and h<sup>w</sup>.

"The schwa: The neutral vowel 'ə', written 'e' in this dictionary [Taifi's dictionary], does not seem to have a phonological status in Tamazight. It appears, however, very frequently in order to avoid unpronounceable groups of consonants. We have therefore maintained this vocalic support in our transcription to facilitate the deciphering and reading of the examples. We do want to note, however, that it is never easy to determine the position of the schwa in the consonant chain" (page XIX in the dictionary). The schwa also appears in the Teach Yourself Tashelhayt materials as an "e." When I've written words in Arabic script, I've represented the schwa as a fatha. At times in rapid speech the schwa appears to be simply a sukun, that is, no vowel at all. This means that some words may be correctly written either with a fatha or with a sukun.

The sign â, used only in Teach Yourself Tashelhayt, is used to indicate the difference between the "a" vowel sound in, for example, the following two words in Moroccan Arabic: دار (house, transcribed "dar") and دَار (the verb "to do," transcribed "dâr"). This is like the difference in English between the words "are" and "air." The present course does not make this distinction in writing; however, the students need to observe it in their pronunciation. Students also need to pay attention to the difference in sound between the long vowel و and the short vowel ا (the damma), both of which are transcribed by "u."

A word about the English "th" ث sound (as in "thing") is necessary. Some Tamazight dialects use this a lot, others not at all or hardly at all. Although the sound exists in English, and in that sense is easy, the way it is used in Tamazight is extremely difficult for English speakers. For this reason, and since some dialects don't use the "th" sound, this course has chosen not to use the sound. This is a deliberate choice to help the language learner (and is linguistically valid for certain dialects). If the student wants later to adapt to a dialect which uses the "th" sound, he/she is certainly free to do that and to do that in the course. Once the student has a certain foundation in Tamazight, adaptation to the "th" sound isn't nearly as difficult as it is in the beginning stages of language learning.

ك This sound is between a ش and a ك. Some regions use it instead of these latter two sounds (in certain words). However, other regions don't use this sound at all. For this course, we have chosen not to use this sound, although students may choose to adapt their speech to those around them using the sound.

Some Verbs (Simple Imperative Form)

بَدَّ	—	stand up
قَيِّم	—	sit down
قَيِّم	—	stay
دَّو	—	go
أَدَّوَد	—	come
أَسِي	—	pick up lift up
سِرْس	—	set down put down
سو	—	drink
تَشْ	—	eat

Possessive Pronouns

They are a combination of pronoun and the preposition ن “n” (“of”).

Examples:

Moha's house	taddart n muḥa	تَدَّارْت ن موحى
his house	taddartennes	تَدَّارْتَنَسْ

Singular

my	nu \ inu	نو \ ينو
your (masc.)	nneš \ enneš	نَش \ تَش
your (fem.)	nnem \ ennem	نَم \ تَم
his, her, its	nnes \ ennes	نَس \ تَس

We obtain the pronoun “inu” (and also “enneš,” “ennem,” “ennes,” etc.) when it is preceded by a consonant, and “nu” (and also “nneš,” “nnem,” “nnes,” etc.) when it is preceded by a vowel.

Plural

our	nneخ \ enneخ	نَخ \ تَخ
your (masc.)	nnun \ ennun	نُن \ تُن
your (fem.)	nnunt \ ennunt	نُنْت \ تُنْت
their (masc.)	nnesen \ ennesen	نَسَن \ تَسَن
their (fem.)	nnesent \ ennesent	نَسَنْت \ تَسَنْت

Although there is normally a shedda on the ن “n” (except for the first person singular), at times you will hear certain of these possessive pronouns without a shedda and without a vowel after the ن “n”: especially نَس “ns,” نَش “nš,” نَسَن “nsen,” and نَسَنْت “nsent.” An example is صَحَانَش “ṣaḥanš,” a way to say “thank-you” (to a man).

Adapted for Tamazight from Teach Yourself Tashelhayt chapter 11, pages 69-71

Important Point. (irrelevant to English speakers)

In French, in which this book was originally written, the possessive pronoun agrees with the item possessed.

In Tamazight (as in English) the possessive pronoun agrees with the possessor of the item possessed. Therefore it is necessary to know the gender(s) and the number of the person(s) possessing the item in order for it to agree. To translate 'your children' has to be in Tamazight 'the children of you', so if a man is being addressed the masculine pronoun 'š' is used or if a woman is being addressed then the feminine pronoun 'm' is used.

TABLE OF POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

1 st	-nu	-inu	my (of me)
2 nd (m)	-nneš (1)	-enneš (1)	your (of you)

- (2) Sometimes one will hear the 'ḥ' pronounced as a 'ğ'.

11.2.1 With Nouns ending with a Vowel

This gives:

11.2.1.1 With a masculine singular noun.

iydi-nu	my dog
iydi-nneš	your dog (referring to one man's dog)
iydi-nnem	your dog (referring to one woman's dog)
iydi-nnes	his , her , or its dog
iydi-nneh	our dog
iydi-nnun	your dog (referring to several men's dog)
iydi-nnunt	your dog (referring to several women's dog)
iydi-nnesen	their dog (referring to several men's dog)
iydi-nnesent	their dog (referring to several women's dog)

11.2.1.2 With a feminine singular noun.

tiḥsi-nu	my ewe
tiḥsi-nneš	your ewe (referring to one man's ewe)
tiḥsi-nnem	your ewe (referring to one woman's ewe)
tiḥsi-nnes	his , her , or its ewe
tiḥsi-nneh	our ewe
tiḥsi-nnun	your ewe (referring to several men's ewe)
tiḥsi-nnunt	your ewe (referring to several women's ewe)
tiḥsi-nnesen	their ewe (referring to several men's ewe)
tiḥsi-nnesent	their ewe (referring to several women's ewe)

11.2.1.3 With a plural noun.

una-nu	my wells
una-nneš	your (m.sing) wells
una-nnem	your (f.sing) wells
una-nnes	his , her , or its wells
una-nneh	our wells
una-nnun	your (m.pl.) wells
una-nnunt	your (f.pl.) wells
una-nnesen	their (m) wells
una-nnesent	their (f) wells

11.2.2 With Nouns ending with a Consonant

When the possessives are added to a noun ending in a consonant, a vowel is introduced between the noun and pronoun. This is an 'i' for the first person singular and an 'e' or schwa vowel for the others.

11.2.2.1 With a masculine singular noun

ašal-inu	my land	ašal-enneh	our land
ašal-enneš	your (m) land	ašal-ennun	your (m) land
ašal-ennem	your (f) land	ašal-ennunt	your (f) land
ašal-ennes	his, her, or its land	ašal-ennesen	their (m) land
		ašal-ennesent	their (f) land

11.2.2.2 With a feminine singular noun

tamazirt-inu	my country	tamazirt-enneh	our country
tamazirt-enneš	your (m) country	tamazirt-ennun	your (m) country
tamazirt-ennem	your (f) country	tamazirt-ennunt	your (f) country
tamazirt-ennes	his, her, or its country	tamazirt-ennesen	their (m) country
		tamazirt-ennesent	their (f) country

11.2.2.3 With a plural noun

igran-inu	my fields	igran-enneh	our fields
igran-enneš	your (m) fields	igran-ennun	your (m) fields
igran-ennem	your (f) fields	igran-ennunt	your (f) fields
igran-ennes	his, her, or its fields	igran-ennesen	their (m) fields
		igran-ennesent	their (f) fields

Homework:

Practice writing all the words on pages 18 and 19 in Arabic script. This is important for you to become more comfortable using Arabic script. See the Answer Key at the back of this book for the complete list. Below is a beginning:

feminine	masculine
يوت or يُوْت or يَوْت (yut) (yuwt) (yiwet)	يون or يُون or يُون (yun) (yuwn) (yiwen)
سَنَات	سِين
شُرَاطْ	شُرَاضْ

There is quite a bit of regional variation for the number "one." The above choices are basically one way to say the number, with three different pronunciations that you will hear. All are equally valid. In addition to this, Khenifra and 'Ain Luh use يوك for the masculine but keep يوت for the feminine. Some areas in the southern portion of the Middle Atlas use يان for the masculine and يات for the feminine. Some others use إِدْج for the masculine and إِشْت for the feminine.

For the numbers 4 and above, there is no distinction between masculine and feminine. The Moroccan Arabic numbers are used.

Some Colors

feminine	masculine
تَزْكَاغْت (tazgg <sup>a</sup> gt)	أَزْكَاغ (azgg <sup>a</sup> g) — red
تَوْرَاغْت	أَوْرَاغ — yellow
تَزْكَزَاوْت or تَزْزَاوْت	أَزْكَزَاو or أَزْزَاو — green
تَزْ بِيْبِيْت	أَزْ بِيْبِي — blue

The Tamazight word for "blue" varies a lot according to region.

Also, some things that Westerners would describe as "blue," Imazighen describe as "green." For example, Imazighen speak of the "green sky," not the "blue sky." To them the sky is أَزْزَاو. Everyone sees the same colors, but each language's words for color may describe slightly different ranges and shades of those colors.

Independent Personal Pronouns

These pronouns take the following forms as subjects of a sentence. As in Spanish, Italian, and Arabic, the use of these pronouns is optional—usually used only to emphasize the subject.

Singular

I	nekk, nekkkin	نَكْ ، نَكَّيْن
you (masc.)	šegg, šeggin	شَكْ ، شَكَّيْن
you (fem.)	šemm, šemmin	شَمْ ، شَمَّيْن
he, it (m.)	ntta	نَتَّا
she, it (f.)	nttat	نَتَّات

Plural

we	nek <sup>w</sup> ni	نُكْنِي
you (masc.)	k <sup>w</sup> enni	كُنِّي
you (fem.)	k <sup>w</sup> ennimti	كُنْمَتِي
they (masc.)	nitni	نِتْنِي
they (fem.)	nitnti	نِتْنَتِي

The first three plural pronouns are written in Arabic script here with a <sup>ˊ</sup> (damma), which is technically not correct. It is how they sound to an English speaker, but this is due not to a damma but rather to the “k” being pronounced in a rounded fashion, that is, with rounded lips. The phonetic transcription reflects this phenomenon. Lip rounding for certain letters is important for proper pronunciation in Tamazight.

- In some areas “g” is pronounced “y.” For example, “šegg” or “šeggin” will be pronounced “šeyy” or “šeyyin.” Also, in some areas the “sh” sound (the symbol “š”) is pronounced “k.” For example, “šeyy” or “šeyyin” will be pronounced “keyy” or “keyyin,” and “šemmin” will become “kemmin.”

Chapter Two

ARTICLES AND GENDERS OF NOUNS

2.1 ARTICLES

In Tamazight there are no separate articles. Neither the Definite Article 'the', nor the indefinite Article 'a(n)', nor the Partitive Article 'some' is translated.

The word أَرِيَّاز can signify equally : 'man', 'the man', (or) 'a man'.

أَغْرُوم can signify equally : 'bread', 'the bread', (or) 'some bread'.

2.2 GENDER OF NOUNS

2.2.1 Masculine Nouns

Consider the following lists of masculine nouns:

- List 1 -

أَكْدِير	wall	أَقَرَّوِي	horn
أَكْلَزِيم	pickaxe	أَزُّرُو	stone
أَغْيُول	donkey	أَغَانِيم	bamboo
أَمَكْسَا	shepherd	أَنُوكْض	lamb
أَنْزَار	rain	أَغَرْدَاي <sup>1</sup>	rat ( ag<sup>w</sup>erday )
أَرِيَّاز	man	أَكْسُوم	meat
أَسَرْدُون	mule	أَمُود	seed

<sup>1</sup> Words that have letters said with rounded lips will also be written in phonetics.

- List 2 -

إِض	night	إِمِي	mouth
إِفْر	leaf	إِزْم	lion
إِفِيلُو	cotton thread	إِغِير	shoulder
إِفْرِي	cave	إِغَزَر	ravine, gully
إِغِيدُو	sand	إِيس	horse
إِغْجَد	kid	إِيدِي	dog
إِغْرَم	village	إِمَنْسِي	evening meal

- List 3 -

وَدَاد	mountain goat	وَشْن	jackal, wolf
وَدَايْ	Jew	وَزَّال	large knife
وَدَم	face	وَرَار	song
وَدِي	rancid butter	وَسَم	lightning (sg.)
وَل	heart	وَتَشِي	food
وَرْتِي	garden	وَغُول	return trip
وَسْكَايْ	greyhound	وَفُوغ	a going out

Observation

Note that all the words in List 1 begin with an 'a..' ( أَ ), those in List 2 with an 'i..' ( إِ ), and those in List 3 with a 'u..' ( أُ or و ).

Rule

It is possible to make the following rule: all nouns that begin with an 'a..' ( أَ ), an 'i..' ( إِ ), or a 'u..' ( أُ or و ) are masculine.

Exceptions

Immediately there is a need to make an exception for some nouns which describe female human and other living beings. However these are few in number. Note them for the moment : إِلِّي (my daughter), أَلْتَمَا (my sister), and وَلِّي (sheep). As well as those nouns originating from Arabic and which start with the Arabic article (see Pages 39-40) there are other masculine nouns which have an initial consonant.

Amongst these are:

باب	proprietor, master	عَمِّي	(my) paternal uncle
بو	owner	خَالِي	(my) maternal uncle
بَا	(my) father	مِدَّن	people
فاد	thirst	لاژ	hunger
بَاحَلَو	(my) grand-father	شَتَوْبَر	October
شَا	something someone	زَعَضُوض	monkey

It is worth learning the names of all the months (which generally start with a consonant) at this point:

January	يَنَّاير or نَّاير	July	يُولْيُوز
February	فَبْرَاير	August	غُشْت
March	مَارَس	September	شَتَنْبِر
April	إِبْرِيل or أَبْرِيل	October	شَتَوْبَر or كَتَوْبَر
May	مَاي or مَايو	November	نَوَنْبِر
June	يُونْيُو	December	دُجَنْبِر

2.2.2 Feminine Nouns

Consider the following lists of feminine nouns:

- List 1 -

تَدَاوْتُ	back (human body)	تِفْلُوت	door
تَفُوشْتُ	sun	تِمَقَّيْتُ	drip, drop
تَمَارْتُ	beard	تِرْمَت	meal
تَشْلَحِيْتُ	Berber woman	توسوت	cough
تَزَارْتُ	fig, fig-tree	توجَّوت	smell, perfume
تِفَاوْتُ	sunlight, day-break	تورْتُ	lung

- List 2 -

تَمَذْلا	a rise, upgrade	تِخْسي	ewe
تَوْكا	caterpillar	تِيْنِي	date (fruit)
تَمَغْرا	party, feast	تِيْزي	col, mountain pass
تَرْكا	trench, irrigation channel ( targ<sup>w</sup>a )	تِغْنِي	sewing
تَوْدا	a going	تِغْغْرا	snake
تَوْلا	fever	تِيْتِي	a hit
تِيْيرْزا	tillage, cultivation	توْكا	grass, herb
تِفِيْي	meat	توشَرْضا	theft
		توسْنا	knowledge

Observation

Note that all these nouns begin with a 't..' ( ت ). Those in the first list have a 't' ( ت ) both at the beginning and the end. Those in the second list have a 't..' ( ت ) only at the beginning. An 'a' ( ا or آ ), an 'i' ( ي or إ ) or a 'u' ( و or أُ ) follows this 't' ( ت ).

Rule

It is possible therefore to make the following rule: all nouns starting with a 't..' ( ت ) are feminine.

Exception

There is one important exception to this rule : تارْوا meaning 'offspring' or 'children' (without distinction of sex) which is a masculine collective plural noun. As well as those nouns originating from Arabic and which start with the Arabic article (see Pages 40-41), there are other feminine nouns which have an initial consonant other than 't' ( ت ). Amongst these are:

لال	propriess, mistress	عَتِّي	(my) paternal aunt
م	owner	خَالْتِي	(my) maternal aunt
مَّا	(my) mother	مَنْغِيوت	murder
مَّاحْلَو	(my) grandmother	مَرْغِيوت	heat

2.3 NOUNS OF ARABIC ORIGIN

There are a number of Arabic words that have passed into Tamazight. These can be divided into two groups:

2.3.1 Masculine Nouns

These are of two types:

2.3.1.1 'Berberised' Nouns

Some nouns of Arabic origin have been 'Berberised' and taken the same form as Tamazight nouns (i.e., with an initial vowel). The Arabic noun in this case is prefixed with an 'a..' ( ا ) :

أَعْسُكْرِي	soldier	أَخْدَام	workman
أَجْنُوي	knife	أَخْمَاس	labourer
أَذْجَار	neighbor	أَخْرَاز	shoemaker/mender
أَنْغَزَار	butcher	أَنْجَار	carpenter, joiner
أَرْومي	European	أَحْدَاد	blacksmith
أَفْلَاح	farmer	أَكْسَاب	breeder

Observation

Note that names relating to occupations take this form, i.e., the Arabic Form prefixed with an 'a..' ( ا ).

Rule

These nouns behave like true Tamazight nouns and follow the same rules as those previously.

2.3.1.2 Nouns that have retained their Arabic Form.

Some other nouns have retained their Arabic Form and have passed into Tamazight prefixed by the Arabic article 'l..' ( ل ) :

لِفَاخَر	charcoal	رَّ هَض	kind, species, sort
لِمَجْمَار	stove, brazier	رَّ ابوز	bellows
لِمُقْرَاج	kettle	سَّكَّر	sugar ( sskk<sup>w</sup>er )
لِمُوس	knife	سَّوق	market
لِقَنْدِيل	lamp	صَّابُون	soap
لِجَامَع	mosque	صَّنْدُوق	box, chest
لِقَايْد	caïd	صَّيْف	summer

لوكيل	agent, representative	طالِب	scholar, teacher
لوقيد	matches	تاجر	merchant
لحاكم	administrator, official	ضامن	guarantor

Observation

The Arabic article is recognised by the 'l..' ( ل ) or the doubled consonant at the beginning of the word. Note that there are words in Arabic which are classified as 'solar' or 'lunar' ("sun letter" or "moon letter."). These classifications relate to how they cause the article to behave. In the case of 'solar' words, i.e., those starting with : t...d...r...z...z..., s...š...ṣ...ḍ...ṭ...l...n..., ( ت , د , ر , ز , ض , ش , س , ط , ظ , ن and sometimes ج <sup>2</sup> ), the 'l..' ( ل ) is assimilated to the initial consonant which itself doubles.

2.3.2 Feminine Nouns

Again these are of two types :

2.3.2.1 'Berberised' Nouns

Some Arabic feminine nouns have been 'Berberised' by prefixing them with a 'ta..' ( تَ or تا ) whilst the final 'a..' ( ة ), which is an indication of an Arabic feminine has become a 't..' ( ت ) :

تَحْرِيرَت	soup, harira	(from حَرِيرَة )
تَكُورَت	ball	(from كُورَة )
تَجَرَّارَت	pulley	(from جَرَّارَة )
تَزْرَبِيَت	rug	(from زَرْبِيَة )
تَقْبِيلَت	tribe	(from قَبِيلَة )
تَقْزِيرَت	old car (slang)	(from قَزِيرَة )

Exceptions

In the case of some other nouns a 'ta..' ( تَ or تا ) has been prefixed to the Arabic article which remains, giving 'tal..' ( تَل or تال ):

تَلْحَدِيَت	piece of metal	(from حَدِيدَة , with the article: لَحْدِيدَة ).
تَلْفِيلَت	female elephant	(from فِيلَة , with the article: لَفِيلَة ).

<sup>2</sup> Some individuals and regions treat ج as a sun letter and others treat it as a moon letter.

تَلْقُرْ طَاصِتْ cartridge (from قُرْطَاصَة , with the article: لَقُرْطَاصَة).
 تَلْبَانَانِتْ banana (from بَانَانَة , with the article: لَبَانَانَة).

2.3.2.2 Nouns that have retained their Arabic Form.

Some other nouns have retained their Arabic form and have passed into Tamazight prefixed by the Arabic article 'l..' ( ل ). The final 'a' ( ة ), which is a mark of the Arabic feminine becomes a 't' ( ت ).

لَعَافِيْتْ	fire	لَكُومِيْتْ	traditional Ashelhay knife
لَعَتَّابِتْ	sill, threshold	نَقَّرْتْ	silver ( nn<sup>w</sup>qert )
لَبْهِيْمِتْ	domesticated animal	دَّوْنِيْتْ	Earth, world
زَّاوِيْتْ	saint's tomb	رَّحْبِتْ	grain market
لَغَابِتْ	forest	صَحَّتْ	body; health
لَقِيْسِتْ	story	دَّعُوْتْ	prayer, appeal, summons
لَخْدَمِتْ	work	صَيْنِيْتْ	tray, platter

Some nouns retain the final Arabic 'a' ( ة ) (which is usually changed to a 'l' in Arabic script).

لَبُونِيَا	a punch	لَمِيكَا	plastic
لَفِيْسْتَا	jacket	سَيْمَانَا	week
لَفِيْشْتَا	party	طَبَّلَا	table

Exceptions

There are some exceptions where the final 't' ( ت ) corresponds to the final consonant of the Arabic root: لَوْقَتْ (moment, period), لَمُوْتْ (death), زَّيْتْ (oil), لَبِيْتْ (room, bedroom), and which are feminine, being in the form, l.....t ( ل.....ت ), or cc.....t ( ل.....ت cc). (The 'cc' represents any two consonants).

2.3.3 Recapitulation

2.3.3.1 Words that are masculine

- Nouns starting with an 'a..' ( أَ ), 'i..' ( إِ ), or a 'u..' ( أُ or أُ ) (and those few nouns that start with a consonant).

- Nouns with an Arabic origin starting with the article 'l..' ( ل ) or a double solar consonant.

2.3.3.2 Words that are feminine

- Nouns starting with 'ta..' ( تَ or تا ), 'ti..' ( تِ or تِي ), or 'tu..' ( تُ or تُو ) (and those few nouns that start with a consonant other than 't' ( ت )).
- Nouns with an Arabic origin starting with the article 'l..' ( ل ) or a double solar consonant and finishing in a '..t' ( ت ) or an '..a' ( ا ).

2.4 FORMATION OF THE FEMININE

Generally the feminine of a masculine noun is formed by adding a 't..' ( ت ) as a prefix and another '..t' ( ت ) as a suffix.

Examples

أَوْتَم	male	تَوْتَمَت	female
أَفُولُوس	cockerel	تَفُولُوسَت	hen
أَلْغَم	he camel ( alg<sup>w</sup>em )	تَلْغَمَت	she camel ( talg<sup>w</sup>emt )
أَغْيُول	jack/he donkey	تَغْيُولَت	jenny/she-donkey
أَرْوَمِي	European (male)	تَرْوَمِيَت	European (female)
أَشْلَحِي	Ashelhay	تَشْلَحِيَت	Tashelhayt
أَسْرَدُون	mule	تَسْرَدُونَت	she-mule
أَمَازِيغ	Amazigh	تَمَازِيغَت	Tamazight
إِسْلِي	fiancé	تِسْلِيَت	fiancée
إِزَم	lion	تِزَمَت	lioness
وَشْن	jackal, wolf	تَوْشْنَت	female jackal, wolf
وَدَاي	Jew	تَوْدَايَت	Jewess

The same applies for adjectives and nouns of colour:

أَرْجَدَال	lame person	تِرَجْدَالَت	female lame person
أَضْرُضُور	deaf person	تِضْرُضُورَت	female deaf person
أَبْخَان	black one	تِبْخَانَت	black one
أَزْكَاغ	red one (azgg <sup>w</sup> ag)	تِزْكَاغَت	red one
أَمَلَال	white one	تِمَلَالَت	white one
أَوْرَاغ	yellow one	تِوْرَاغَت	yellow one
أَمْزُوارو	first one	تِمْزُواروت	first one
أَمْكَارو	last one	تِمْكَاروت	last one

Some nouns are completely irregular in forming their feminine forms!:

أَرْيَاز	man	تَمْطُوط	woman
إِيَّيس	horse/stallion	تَكْمَارَت	mare
أَزْكَر	bull	تَفُونَاست	cow
بَا	(my) father	مَّا	(my) mother
كُثْمَا	(my) brother	أَلْتَمَا	(my) sister
مَمِّي	(my) son	إِلِّي	(my) daughter
أَحُولِي	ram	تِخْسِي	ewe
بَاب	proprietor, owner	لَال	proprietress, owner
بُو	proprietor, owner	مَّ	proprietress, owner

2.5 NAMES OF CAREERS, PROFESSIONS AND FUNCTIONS

These nouns are formed from the name of the activity in the same way as the feminine.

Examples

أَنْجَار	carpenter	تِنْجَارَت	carpentry
أَبْنَائِي	builder	تِبْنَائَت	construction work
أَخْرَاز	shoemaker	تِخْرَازَت	shoemaking
أَعْطَار	spice merchant	تِعْطَارَت	spice merchantry

Note

Most of these 'Berberised' nouns have passed back into colloquial Arabic (ddarija).

2.6 DIMINUTIVES

Some masculine nouns have a special form to express the diminutive. This is exactly the same as the feminine form (with a 't..' ( ت ) prefix and a '..t ' ( ت ) suffix). However see Paragraph 2.8.2 below.

Examples

أَصَار	foot	تَصَارَتْ	small foot
أَفُوس	hand	تَفُوسَتْ	small hand
أَكْرَتِيل	mat (of reeds)	تَكْرَتِيلَتْ	small mat
أَغْبَالُو	spring	تَغْبَالُوَتْ	small spring
أَوْرِير	hill	تَوْرِيرَتْ	small hill
أَزْكَوْ	shopping basket	تَزْكَوَتْ	small basket
إِفْر	leaf	تِفْرَتْ	wing (of bird)

These Diminutives, in that they have a feminine form, are considered as though they are feminine.

Important Note

There is no separate diminutive form for feminine nouns.

2.7 AUGMENTATIVES

Conversely, there are some nouns, which are normally used in their diminutive or feminine form, which have an augmentative form. This form is not much used.

Examples

تَزْلَافَتْ	large plate	أَزْلَاف	very large plate
تَفِيغْرَا	snake	إِفِيغْرَا	large snake
تَمَارَتْ	beard	أَمَار	large beard
تَوَزَّالَتْ	traditional knife	وَزَّال	large traditional knife
تَوَزَّلِينَ	scissors	وَزَّلَان	large scissors; shears

2.8 GENERAL COMMENTS

2.8.1 Gender of Nouns (important because of rules of agreement)

- Gender is usually identified by the form of the noun :

A) Some examples of masculine Tamazight nouns which are feminine in French. [Note that this is a case of a distinction which is irrelevant to the English speaker but is included in order to maintain an approximation to Aspinion's original pagination].

أَفُوس	hand	إِفْرِي	cave
أَسِيد	light	إِخْف	head
أَكْرَتِيل	mat (of reeds)	إِمِي	mouth
أَغْبَالُو	fountain, spring	فَاد	thirst
أَسِيف	river	إِتْرِي	star
أَزَاغَار	plain (geog.)	أَوْطُوف	ant
أَنْزَار	rain	أَقْلَاب	wound (to the head)

B) Some examples of feminine Tamazight nouns which are masculine in French.[Ditto]

تَفُوشْت	sun	تَبْحِيرْت	garden
تَغْرُسْت	winter	لُوقْت	moment
تَمِيمْت	honey	تِرْمْت	meal
تَاسَا	liver	تِيسْنْت	salt
تِفِغْرَا	snake	تِيزِي	col, mountain pass

2.8.2 Formation of the Feminine and the Diminutive.

- Do not assume that all masculine nouns have a feminine and/or diminutive form that is formed automatically by following the rules given.
- There are those masculine nouns which have a feminine form but do not have a diminutive form:

a) تَفُولُوسْت (hen) which is the feminine of أَفُولُوس (cockerel) is not considered to be diminutive as well.

b) أَرِيَّاز (man) has as its feminine form تَمْطُوط (woman) and does not have a diminutive form.

2.8.3 Phonetic rules.

At the moment it will be sufficient to indicate that the formation of the feminine or the diminutive are subject to the following observations with regard to the addition of the 't' (ت) suffix:

- If the noun ends in a 'd' (د), that 'd' (د) is assimilated to the 't' (ت) :
أَفُود (knee), becomes in its diminutive form: تَفُوت.
أَحَدَّاد (blacksmith), gives as the name of the activity: تَحَدَّات.
- Another example is the case of 'Berberisation' of feminine Arabic nouns where the final 'a' (ة) is replaced by a 't' (ت) :
لُفَايْدَة (use, profit, benefit, result) becomes: لُفَايْدَت, and phonetically: لُفَايْت.
- If the 'd' sound is an emphatic (ض), the emphasis moves to the 't' (ت) :
أَغَاض (billy goat), becomes in the feminine: تَغَاط (nanny goat).
أَكْغَرَض (neck), becomes in its diminutive form: تَكْغَرِط.
- In some dialects, when the masculine noun ends in a 'g' (غ), in the feminine the 'g' (غ) becomes a 'h' (خ) when it is in contact with the final 't' (ت).

أَزْغَاغ (red one) becomes in the feminine تَزْغَاخَت.
أَوْرَاغ (yellow one) becomes in the feminine تَوْرَاخَت.

These phonetic assimilations, which are very common, can be summarised as follows:

$d + t = tt$	د + ت = ت
$d + t = t\ddot{t}$	ض + ت = ط
$g + t = ht$	غ + ت = خ

These phonetic rules should not be ignored without good reason. They are only to do with the simple question of pronunciation, and one applies them quite naturally because of the speed (more or less!) of one's speech. It is easier to pronounce: تَغَاط (she-goat) than

REVISION EXERCISE NO. 1

1.1 Translate the following nouns and give their feminine forms :

The Verb گِيخ (to be—descriptive)

In Tamazight there are two different verbs which mean "to be," گِيخ ("I am") and لِيخ ("I am"), which are used to express different things. The first one is for descriptions; the second one is for speaking about existence and locating things and people. This lesson concerns the first "to be" verb. Note the conjugation below:

we are	nga	نڭا	I am	giخ	گِيخ
you (m.pl.) are	tgam	تڭام	you (m.s.) are	tgid	تڭيد

أَعْرَبَنْ تَعْرَبِينَ

أَدْجَارَ تَدْجَارَتْ
أَدْجَارَنْ تَدْجَارِينَ

1. These regular plurals apply mainly to categories like people, nationalities, jobs, colors, and defects (like blind, deaf, mute, bald, etc.). Most other nouns do not follow these plural patterns. Each of those plurals must be learned separately.
2. When a singular word ends with the vowel "i," as in "akanadi," the masculine plural suffix is just the "n" added on: "ikanadin." However, some areas add an "en," which makes "ikanadien." This extra schwa vowel is very short. It's recommended that the student learn just the "n" ending in these cases, since it is a lot easier.
3. The feminine plural suffix is "in." However, for masculine singular words ending in "i," as in "akanadi," when the "in" encounters the "i," the two "i" vowels can't go together. Thus, a consonant "y" is inserted between them. This results in an "iyin" ending. For example: "tikanadiyin," "tiromiyin," etc.
4. In some plural words, both masculine and feminine, the initial vowel does not change to an "i." These exceptions occur because the words are either "a-constant" or "u-constant." Thus, "aḡrab" becomes "aḡraben," and the feminine plural is "taḡrabin." The same occurs for the word for "neighbor": "adjar" becomes "adjjaren," and the feminine plural is "tadjjarin." All words that start with a "u" are "u-constant" and retain their initial "u." Thus, "uḡday" in the masculine plural is "uḡdayn," and the feminine plural is "tuduḡdayin." Also, "uḡdid" becomes "uḡdiden" in the masculine plural and "tuduḡdidin" in the feminine plural.
5. The word for "Muslim" varies quite a bit. Different ways to say it include:

"anslem"	"tanslemt"	"inselmen"	"tinselmin"
"anslem"	"tanslemt"	"inslemen"	"tinslemin"
"amunslem"	"tamunslemt"	"imunslemen"	"timunslemin"

6. When the masculine plural ending "n" is added to an "r" or an "l," certain speakers do not pronounce the "n." The "n" is assimilated into the "r" or "l," and that final "r" or "l" is doubled, that is, said with a shedda. Thus "iderḡaln" may be pronounced "iderḡall," and "adjjarn" may be pronounced "adjjarr<sup>1</sup>."

7. The final "n" that is added to make the masculine plural often has a short vowel "e" added between a final consonant and the "n" ending. Thus, we have a clear "en" sound in "imaziḡen." However, this short "e" vowel is not always necessary or sometimes is so short that it doesn't seem to appear at all. Thus, the masculine plural for the word "new" sounds more like "uḡdidn" than "uḡdiden." This also explains the assimilation mentioned in number 6 above. The last two consonants have nothing between them, so they are pronounced as one.

Since this short schwa vowel is difficult to always place properly, we have included it for consistency's sake in almost every case on the previous page. However, the student should listen to how a native speaker pronounces the endings of various words in order to know whether or not to include the short "e" vowel in any particular word.

<sup>1</sup> Some people pronounce the word for "neighbor" without a shedda on the "j": أَذْ جَار "adjar." Taifi's dictionary lists the word this way on page 318, under "ŽWR."

← مَاكَّرَا؟	مائي إِرَا؟	—	What does he want?

Dependent (or Construct) Form of Nouns

In certain grammatical contexts in a sentence (which will be explained later), the first vowel of the noun is changed, augmented, deleted, or left alone. This is called the dependent (or, in some grammar books, the construct) form of the noun.

The first vowel is changed, augmented, deleted, or left alone as follows:

Masculine nouns (singular and plural):

a → u      أَبْرِيد → أَبْرِيذ      أَرْيَاز → أَرْيَازْ

a → wa      وَاسِيْدَ → وَاسِيْدْ      وَاتَايَ → وَاتَايْ

These latter nouns (that change to a "wa") are called "a-constant" nouns, because even though the "w" is added, the "a" remains. Which pattern applies to which word must be memorized for each word and cannot be predicted. However, although there are a number of "a-constant" nouns, most nouns that start with "a" fit the first pattern and turn to a "u." Thus, if you must guess, guess a "u."

i → yi      يِيْغَر → يِيْغَرْ      يِيْلَس → يِيْلَسْ

i → unchanged

Which pattern applies to which word must be memorized for each word and cannot be predicted. However, for words that start with "i" it seems that most words remain unchanged or that the addition of the "y" isn't that noticeable, especially in the plural. Thus, if you must guess, guess "unchanged."

u → wu      وَوَشَن → وَوَشَنْ      وَوَدَايَ → وَوَدَايْ

Notice that the "u" is always changed to a "wu." All nouns that start with a "u" are "u-constant."

Words that start with consonants don't usually change.

Feminine nouns (singular and plural):

ta → t° The initial "a" is dropped. تَمَازِيْغَت → تَمَازِيْغَت

ta → unchanged تَدَّارَت remains تَدَّارَت

These latter nouns (that retain the "a") are called "a-constant" nouns. Which pattern applies to which word must be memorized for each word and cannot be predicted. However, most nouns that start with "ta" fit the first pattern and drop the initial "a." Thus, if you must guess, guess that the "a" drops out. Usually that means two consonants run together. For example, "tamazight" becomes "tmazight." In certain cases when there are multiple consonants together, with no vowels in between, a short schwa or "e" vowel must be added for pronunciation. Thus, "tarbatt" becomes "trbatt," which must be said as "terbatt."

ti → t° The initial "i" is dropped. تِفْلَفَلَت → تِفْلَفَلَت

ti → unchanged تَيْسَنَت remains تَيْسَنَت

These latter nouns (that retain the "i") are called "i-constant" nouns. Which pattern applies to which word must be memorized for each word and cannot be predicted. It's difficult to say which is the most common pattern.

tu → tu The "u" always remains. تَوْزَلِين remains تَوْزَلِين

All nouns that start with "tu" are "u-constant" nouns.

Words that start with consonants don't usually change.

When to use the dependent form of the noun

- A. After most prepositions
- B. After و meaning "and"
- C. After numbers
- D. When the noun is the subject of the sentence and follows the verb (which is its normal position in a sentence. It's just like Moroccan Arabic.)

Chapter Three

THE CONSTRUCT FORM

(First of five chapters)

A noun is said to be in its Construct Form (also known as its Annexation Form or Dependent Form) when it is modified by certain grammatical situations (to be considered later) in which it is placed.<sup>1</sup>

3.1 WHEN INFLUENCED BY PREPOSITIONS

List of the principal prepositions:

إِ	to (dative), to the, for
شِ	in, at (situation, location, where one is)
غَر	towards, to (movement, tendency, where one is going)
س	with (by means of, manner) e.g. 'to hit with a stick, with force'
د	with (accompanying) e.g. 'he has left with his brother'
خَف	on
ن	of, in (material), e.g. 'the key of the door', 'the bag of gold'
غَر	the place of (as in the French ' chez ')
زِي	from, out of (origin, racial extraction, where one comes from)
دَات	before (in time and space)
فَيْرْ	after (in time and space)
تَفَيْرْ
إِنْغَر	between, amongst
دَّوْ	under
نَيْكْ	above, over
بَلَا	without, except
أَلْ	until, as far as

<sup>1</sup> These situations are mainly:

- When the noun is preceded by most prepositions
- When the noun is preceded by the conjunction "and" (which is really the preposition د)
- When the noun is the subject of the sentence and comes after the verb (its normal position)

CHAPTER 3 - THE CONSTRUCT FORM

These prepositions, with the exception of بِـ and أَلـ, require that a following noun takes its Construct Form as below:

3.1.1 Masculine Nouns

3.1.1.1 Nouns starting with an 'a..' 'أـ'

Take the translation of: 'to the man' or 'for the man'

'to' or 'for' = إـ      'man' = أَرِيَّاز

One would expect to hear: إـ-أَرِيَّاز. What one actually hears is: إـ-أَرِيَّاز. The initial 'a..' of 'aryaz' has become a 'u..'. This is known as its Construct Form, and it has taken this form because it follows the preposition إـ.

Other examples

on the road

خَفَ أَبْرِيدَ

with the elder (in the company of...)

دَ إِمْغَارَ

Note

When writing, the preposition and the noun are separated by a space to distinguish them. However, in speaking, the sounds run together. One says: دومغار, كيفري, سيفيلو, etc.

3.1.1.2 Nouns starting with an 'i..' 'إـ'

Example

and the field	دَ يِيْغَر	with the tongue	سَ يِيْلَس
in the cave	كْ إِفْرِي	with the thread	سَ إِفِيلُو

Notice that for some nouns the 'i..' does not change, while for others it becomes 'yi..', although this change is not noticeable in all dialects. Only by continually using these words will one find and remember which ones stay the same and which ones become 'yi..'. Here are some of the latter:

إِرْدَن	wheat	إِغْد	ashes	إِزَم	lion
إِطْنَص	sleep	إِلْس	tongue	إِسْم	name
إِفْر	leaf	إِخْر	field	إِر	edge

3.1.1.3 Nouns starting with a 'u..'

Example

with the Jew	د (د meaning 'in the company of')	وودايْ
with the knife	س (س meaning 'by means of')	ووزْ آل
in the garden		لْ وورْ تي
to the wolf		إ ووشْن

Notice that here the 'u..' is always lengthened to 'wu..'

3.1.1.4 Nouns starting with a consonant

Example

to my father	إ بَا
with my son	د مَمِّي
between the people	إِنْغَر مِدَّن
with the matches	س لَوَقِيد

Notice that masculine nouns starting with a consonant do not change. This is especially the case with Arabic nouns, although there are some exceptions.

Note: with iron س وَالتَّحْدِيد (from Arabic noun لَحْدِيد)

3.1.1.5 Recapitulation

Prepositions influence the initial vowel of masculine nouns thus:

- the 'a..' is dropped and replaced by a 'u..'
- the 'i..' remains but sometimes is lengthened to 'yi..'
- the 'u..' is lengthened to 'wu..'
- initial consonants do not usually change

3.1.1.6 Exceptions (1)

There are some nouns in which the initial 'a..' does not disappear in the Construct Form. This 'a..' remains but still a 'u..' is added but is lengthened to a 'w..', giving 'wa..'. (It has already been seen that a 'u' followed by a vowel becomes a 'w'.)

Examples

	Actual Construct Form	Expected Construct Form
in the water	لْ وَاْمَان	لْ اُْمَان
on the straw	خَفْ وَاْلِيْم	خَفْ اُْلِيْم
with the word	س وَاْوَال	س اُْوَال

CHAPTER 3 - THE CONSTRUCT FORM

Here are some of the nouns that are known as "a-constant" nouns. Usage alone will show which is which:

أَنْجَار neighbor	أَلَّيْن eyes (pl.)
أَضِيل grapes	أَسِيف river
أَضُو wind, smell	أَسَّ day
أَكَّو smoke	أَتَاي tea
أَسِيد light	أَتَاك cushion
أَلْوُض mud, clay	أَوَال word, language
أَنُو well	أَيُور moon, month
أَشَال ground, soil	أَزَّار hair (collective)
أَلِيم straw	أَنَا pair
أَمَان water (pl.)	أَعْرَب an Arab
أَمُود seed	أَوَارَن flour
أَيَفْلَان such and such	أَبْدَا eternity

3.1.1.7 Exceptions (2)

The prepositions أَل and بَلَا do not cause following nouns to take their Construct Form. However, when the word following بَلَا starts with a vowel, Tamazight does not like two vowels coming together. Thus, for pronunciation purposes (and not because it's a dependent form) a 'y' sound or ي is added to separate the two vowel sounds.

Examples

as far as the river	أَلْ أَسِيف
as far as the road	أَلْ أَبْرِيد
without the man	بَلَا يَارْيَاز
without the boy	بَلَا يَارْبَا

3.1.2 Feminine Nouns

3.1.2.1 Nouns starting with 'ta...' تـ

The 'a' following the initial 't..' disappears

Examples

	Actual Construct Form	Without Construct Form
in the country	لْ تَمَازِيرْت	لْ تَمَازِيرْت
by running	س تَرُولَا	س تَرُولَا
in Tamazight	س تَمَازِيْغْت	س تَمَازِيْغْت
to the woman	إ تَمَطُّوْطْ	إ تَمَطُّوْطْ
in the shop	لْ تَحَانُوْطْ	لْ تَحَانُوْطْ
on the mule	خَف تَسْرَدُونْت	خَف تَسْرَدُونْت

Note that a short 'e' sound (often called a schwa vowel) is introduced orally when the disappearance of the vowel would leave a group of unpronounceable consonants: temtʃutʃ for tmʃutʃ. The independent form is tamtʃutʃ.

3.1.2.2 Nouns starting with 'ti..' تـ

Here as with the 'a' previously, the 'i' following the 't..' disappears.

Examples

	Actual Construct Form	Without Construct Form
with the pepper	س تِفْلَفَلْت	س تِفْلَفَلْت
above the door	نِيْكَ تِفْلُوْطْ	نِيْكَ تِفْلُوْطْ
from the fiancée	زِي تَسْلِيْطْ	زِي تَسْلِيْطْ

3.1.2.3 Nouns starting with 'tu...' تو

with the scissors	س تَوَزْلِيْن
in the grass	لْ تَوَغَّا
to the Jewess	إ تَوْدَايْت

Notice that none of these nouns has changed.

3.1.2.4 Nouns starting with a consonant other than a 't..' ت

to the world	إ دَّوْنِيْطْ
on the threshold	خَف لَعْتَبْتْ
in the lucerne	لْ لَفَصَّا

CHAPTER 3 - THE CONSTRUCT FORM

Note that feminine nouns starting with a consonant other than a 't..' do not change in their Construct Form; compare with masculine nouns on Page 61.

3.1.2.5 Recapitulation

The vowels 'a' and 'i' of nouns starting with 'ta..' or 'ti..' disappear, whereas the vowel 'u' of nouns starting with 'tu..' does not.

All these feminine nouns take their Construct Form when following a preposition. This is shown by the disappearance of the vowels 'a' and 'i' but not the 'u'.

3.1.2.6 Exceptions

Some feminine nouns retain the vowel 'a' or 'i' after the 't..' in their Construct Form. These are also known as "a-constant" or "i-constant" nouns.

Examples

in the house	لْكَ تَدَّارْتْ (instead of تَدَّارْتْ)
on the nanny-goat	خَفْ تَغَاطْ (instead of تَغَاطْ)
with the salt	سْ تِسْنَتْ (instead of تِسْنَتْ)

Here are some of these nouns (that usage alone will show you which is which). Nouns that are "a-constant" or "i-constant" are normally shown thus: أَضِيلْ (wa), أَمَانْ (ti). (Some of these words, according to certain speakers, can appear both in a constant and non-constant form. Thus, it is possible to hear both تَزَمْتْ and تَزَمْتْ from the same speaker for its Construct Form. Usage alone reveals this phenomenon.)

تَدَاوْتْ back (human body)	تِفَاوْتْ daylight, dawn
تَدَجَّارْتْ neighbor	تِخْسِي ewe
تَدُونْتْ fat, grease	تِلَّاسْ shadows, darkness
تَضُوطْ wool	تِرْمَتْ meal
تَفُوشْتْ sun	تِسْنَتْ salt
تَغَاطْ nanny-goat	تِسْكَرْتْ garlic
تَكَّاتْ ravine	تِيطْ eye
تَمَارْتْ beard	تِيْنِي date (fruit)
تَزَارْتْ fig, fig tree	تِزْمَتْ lioness
تَدَّارْتْ house	تِيزِي col, mountain pass
تَايْرِي love	تِيْدِي sweat, perspiration
تَاسَا liver

Vocabulary

تَوِي	—	Touch!	إِخْفَاوَن	إِخْفَ (y)	—	head
حَادَا	—	Touch!	إِفَاسَن	أَفُوس (u)	—	hand, arm
			إِضَارَن	أَضَار (u)	—	foot, leg
			وَدْمَاوَن (wu)	وَدَم (wu)	—	face
			إِضُودَان	أَضَاد (u)	—	finger
أَفْلَان	—	on, on top of	إِمَاوَن	إِمِي (y)	—	mouth; door gate, entry, opening
				إِذْمَارَن	—	(pl.) chest
			وَلَاوَن (wu)	وَل (wu)	—	heart
			أَلَن (wa)	تَيْط (ti)	—	eye, eyes
			إِمَزْيَان	أَمَزَّوْغ (u)	—	ear
			or	تَيْنَزَار <sup>1</sup> (tn)	—	(pl.) nose
				أَخْمَوِي (u)
تَحَانُوت (th)	—	hanut		إِدَامَن	—	(pl.) blood
				أَزَّار (wa)	—	hair
			تَمِيرَا (tm)	تَمَارْت (ta)	—	beard

<sup>1</sup> You may also hear the pronunciations: تِيْنَزَار (ty) or تِيْخْنَزَار (tg). Each of these words is feminine plural, even though they refer to just one nose. (This is because the singular word refers to a nostril, and a nose consists of two nostrils.) These words are used mainly in the northern part of the central Moroccan Berber language region, whereas the following word أَخْمَوِي (a singular word) is used more in the southern part of that region.

Important Variations with the Genitive ن (of) and Nouns in their Dependent Forms

A. For the sake of ease and consistency, we will always pronounce the possessive ن (of) before every noun, even if that noun starts with a vowel. Thus, we will say

لُكَّاس ن وَاِمَان

lkas n waman
a glass of water

أَفُوس ن أُرْبَا

afus n urba
the hand of the boy

أَحْبُوب ن يِيرْدَن

ahbub n yirden
a grain of wheat

These are legitimate pronunciations in certain regions. However, other regions, especially in the northern areas of the Middle Atlas, do NOT pronounce the ن when it occurs before a word that starts with a vowel in its non-dependent form (unless the word is a name or a kinship term). Instead, for these nouns, if the dependent form of the noun starts with a "w" or a "y," these sounds are doubled, that is, said with a shedda. It is as if the ن was absorbed or assimilated into the "w" or "y." If the dependent form of the noun starts with a "u," the "n" sound is simply dropped. Thus, many regions say

لُكَّاس وَاِمَان

lkas wwaman
a glass of water

أَفُوس أُرْبَا

afus urba
the hand of the boy

أَحْبُوب يِيرْدَن

ahbub yyirden
a grain of wheat

If the noun is a name or a kinship term or some other proper noun that starts with a vowel, the ن is retained. Thus, we have

أَفُوس ن إِطَو

afus n ittū
the hand of Itto

أَخَام ن إِبَّا

axam n ibba
the tent of my father

تَمْدِينْت ن أُزْرُو

tamdint n uzru
the city of Azrou

B. In addition to this, when the "n" occurs before a noun that starts with the following consonants: "l," "r," "m," and "n," the "n" is assimilated into those consonants and those consonants are said with a shedda. Thus, before those consonants you will not hear an "n" sound. So

سَوَّق ن لَحَدَّ is pronounced سَوَّق لَحَدَّ

ssuq n lchedd
the market of Sunday

ssuq llchedd
the market of Sunday

In this course we will follow this phenomenon of not pronouncing the "n" before these four consonants.

we are	nella	نَلَّا	I am	lliخ	لَيِّخ
you (m.pl.) are	tellam	تَلَّام	you (m.s.) are	tellid	تَلَّيد
you (f.pl.) are	tellamt	تَلَّامْت	you (f.s.) are	tellid	تَلَّيد
they (m.) are	llan	لَّان	he is	illa	إِلَّا
they (f.) are	llant	لَّانْت	she is	tella	تَلَّا

Examples:

I'm (f.) American.	giخ tamarikanit.	غِيخ تَمَرِيكَانِيْت.
The book is new.	iga leřtab ujdidi.	إِغَا لَشْتَاب وَجْدِيد.
They (m.) are Berbers.	gan imaziغen.	غَان إِمَازِيغَن.
Moha is in the house.	illa muحa g taddart.	إِلَّا مَوْحَى كْ تَدَّارْت.
It's windy. [There is wind.]	illa uzwu.	إِلَّا أُزْوُو.
There's water in the river.	llan waman g wasif.	لَّان وَاْمَان كْ وَاسِيْف.
Is Tuda there? Yes, she's here.	is tella tuda? tella.	إِس تَلَّا تَوْدَا؟ تَلَّا.

Demonstrative Adjectives

Suffixed

this	— a	ا —
that	— in	ين —

Examples

This man is tired.	yuحel uryaza.	يُوْحَلْ أُرْيَازَا.
That house is nice.	tğuda taddartin.	تَغُودَا تَدَّارْتِين.

Chapter Thirteen

SOME VERBS

13.1 CONJUGATION

The conjugation of verbs cannot be left any longer. Initially only the Preterite<sup>1</sup> Form of some commonly used verbs will be considered.

13.1.1 The Verb 'To Be' (meaning to exist, to be somewhere, etc.)

llih	I (m. or f.) am/was	nella	we (m. or f.) are/were
tellid	you (m.) are/were	tellam	you (m.) are/were
tellid	you (f.) are/were	tellamt	you (f.) are/were
illa	he is/was	llan	they (m.) are/were
tella	she is/was	llant	they (f.) are/were

13.1.2 The Verb 'To Be' (indicating a condition, i.e., to be something. This verb can also mean 'to do'.)

gih	I (m. or f.) am/was	nga	we (m. or f.) are/were
tgid	you (m.) are/were	tgam	you (m.) are/were
tgid	you (f.) are/were	tgamt	you (f.) are/were
iga	he is/was	gan	they (m.) are/were
tga	she is/was	gant	they (f.) are/were

Note

These two verbs often cause confusion. It is important to be able to distinguish them. They both translate the English verb 'to be,' but the first one indicates 'to exist' or 'to be in a place,' while the second indicates 'to be something or somebody.'

Examples

The donkey is in the field.

أَغْيُول إِيَّا كْ إِثْر.

The donkey is an animal.

أَغْيُول إِيَّا يوت لَّبْهِيْمَت.

There was a man who was the Elder of a tribe.

إِيَّا يُون أَرْيَاز إِيَّا
أَمْغَار ن يوت ن تَقْبِيلَت.

<sup>1</sup> We've called this the "past" tense form. But remember that many of these verbs can also have a present tense meaning. This is especially true of the verbs for "to be."

Vocabulary

وَلَايْنِي	— but	تَمَطُّوطٌ <sup>(tm)</sup> تَوْتَمِين <sup>(tu)</sup>	— woman, women wife, wives
		أَرِيَاز <sup>(u)</sup> إِرِيَزَن	— man, men husband, husbands
أَنْزَار <sup>(u)</sup>	— rain	أَرْبَا <sup>(u)</sup> إِرْبَان	— boy(s)

Number Plus Noun

(one road, two roads, etc.)

1. There is a distinction between masculine and feminine only in 1 through 3.
2. From 4 and above the numbers are all in Moroccan Arabic.
3. Like Moroccan Arabic, the singular noun is used with 1 and with 11 and above, while the plural noun is used with 2 through 10.
4. The dependent form is used after all the numbers.
5. From 1 to 3, we will use an "n," even though some regions don't use the "n" for these numbers. But for masculine numbers 1 and 2, since there is already an "n" sound, we won't write an additional "n." From 4 and above, everyone uses the "n," except when the "n" appears before words starting with a vowel. (For this latter variation, see page 66: "Important Variations with the Genitive ُ (of) and Nouns in their Dependent Form.")

Another way to picture the explanation is:

1	+	"n"	+	singular noun (in its dependent form)	masc. or fem. number
2	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)	masc. or fem. number
3	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)	masc. or fem. number
4	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
5	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
6	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
7	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
8	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
9	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
10	+	"n"	+	plural noun (in its dependent form)
11	+	"n"	+	singular noun (in its dependent form)
12	+	"n"	+	singular noun (in its dependent form)

and this pattern continues after this.

Do you want Moha's Miriam (Miriam of those of Moha) or Haddou's Miriam (Miriam of those of Haddou)?

Demonstrative Adjectives

1. In English these are the words: "this, that, these, and those" used with a noun.

this man, that boy, these girls, those women

2. In Tamazight demonstrative adjectives are done by adding suffixes to the noun.

3. There are only two suffixes: ا ("a") for near and ين ("in") for far.

that man	aryazin	أَرِيَا زِين	this man	aryaza	أَرِيَا زَا
----------	---------	--------------	----------	--------	-------------

4. These same two suffixes are used whether the word is masculine or feminine and whether the word is singular or plural.

that man	aryazin	أَرِيَا زِين	this man	aryaza	أَرِيَا زَا
that woman	tamɛtɛtɛtin	تَمَطَّوْطِين	this woman	tamɛtɛtɛta	تَمَطَّوْطَا
those men	irizenin	إِرِيْزَنِين	these men	irizena	إِرِيْزَنَا
those women	tiwteminin	تَوْتَمِينِين	these women	tiwtemina	تَوْتَمِينَا

5. When a noun ends with a vowel there is a slight change in pronunciation. Since Tamazight does not like two vowels together (and both demonstrative adjective suffixes begin with vowels), a "y" sound is inserted between the two vowels. The following are examples of nouns ending with "a," "i," and "u."

that boy	arbayin	أَرْبَا يِين	this boy	arbaya	أَرْبَا يَا
that ewe	tiɛsiyin	تِيْخْسِي يِين	this ewe	tiɛsiya	تِيْخْسِي يَا
that well	anuyin	أَنْوِي يِين	this well	anuya	أَنْوِي يَا

The Second Way to Say "To Have"

1. There are two ways to say "to have something." The first way we learned in lesson 15. The structure there was:

the noun possessed + the preposition غور
(in its non-dependent form) with all the pronoun possibilities

نَخ	ي
ن	ش
نَت	م
سَن	س
سَنَت	س

For this first way to say "to have" it doesn't matter what the noun is, whether masculine or feminine, singular or plural. The noun is in its normal, non-dependent form.

2. However, there is also a second way to say "to have." Although this way is more complicated, people use it all the time. Thus, you need to learn to hear it and to use it. It is very common. After some practice, it won't seem that complicated at all.
3. Compare the following two ways to say "to have" something:

	the second way	the first way
I have a son.	إِلَّا غوري أَرَبَا.	غوري أَرَبَا.
I have an egg.	تَلَا غوري تَغْلَايَت.	غوري تَغْلَايَت.
I have water.	لَانَ غوري وَاَمَان.	غوري أَمَان.
I have eggs.	لَانَت غوري تَغْلَاي.	غوري تَغْلَاي.

Notice the two main differences:

- A. The second way uses the conjugated form of the "to be" verb إِلِي.
- B. In the second way the noun possessed is in its dependent form, since it is the subject of the "to be" verb. Since the noun possessed is the subject, it determines how the verb is to be conjugated: masculine singular, feminine singular, masculine plural, or feminine plural. These are the only four possibilities.

4. Thus, the structure for this second way of saying "to have" is as follows:

the noun possessed + the preposition غور + the past conjugated form of إلي (in its dependent form, with all the pronoun possibilities (only four possible forms) since it is the subject)

m.s.	نَخ	ي	إِلَا
f.s.	نْ	ش	تَلَا
m.pl.	نَتْ	م	لَان
f.pl.	سَنْ سَنْتْ	س س	لَانَتْ

5. Questions with "to have"

A. The question "What do you (m.s.) have?"

the second way	the first way
or مَإِي غورُشْ إِلَان؟ مَاكَلَان غورُشْ؟	مَإِي غورُشْ؟

There are two possibilities to ask this question in the "second way." In either case, the question word مَإِي is the subject of the verb, so the verb is in its participle form (third masculine singular plus "n"). (We will cover participles later, but a general rule is that when a question word is the subject of a verb, then the following verb is in its participle form. That simply involves adding an "n" to the third masculine singular form.) Because there is a question word, the غورُشْ (or غورُم , غورُن , or غورُنَتْ) can move to in front of the verb. (We will cover this phenomenon in depth later on. For now, know that question words can cause certain pronouns and prepositions to change places in the sentence.) However, although this is definitely said by people, not all people do this. Some leave the preposition in its normal position. If the preposition doesn't come in front of the verb, the two "i" sounds from مَإِي and إِلَان combine to form a hard "g" with a shedda. This results in the two questions written above under "the second way."

B. The question "Do you (m.s.) have _____?"

the second way

the first way

؟ _____ m.s. _____	إِس إِلَا غورْش	؟ _____	إِد غورْش
؟ _____ f.s. _____	إِس تَلَا غورْش
؟ _____ m.pl. _____	إِس لَان غورْش
؟ _____ f.pl. _____	إِس لَانْت غورْش

In the second way, since the question now has a verb, the question word is إِس instead of إِد, which is used with a non-verb. The subject of the verb is the object possessed (which is in its dependent form), which is either masculine singular, feminine singular, masculine plural, or feminine plural. Thus, the verb is conjugated in four possible ways.

Although it is possible that the preposition moves to in front of the verb (because of the question word), most people don't say it that way. Thus, we won't either.

The following are some example sentences:

Do you (m.s.) have a son?	إِس إِلَا غورْش أُرْبَا؟
Do you (m.s.) have an egg?	إِس تَلَا غورْش تَغْلَايْت؟
Do you (m.s.) have water?	إِس لَان غورْش وَاْمَان؟
Do you (m.s.) have eggs?	إِس لَانْت غورْش تَغْلَاي؟

Conjugation of "Regular" Verbs

تَو – to forget

تَوخ	نَتَو	..... خ	..... ذ
تَتَوْد	تَتَوْم	ت..... د	ت..... م
تَتَوْد	تَتَوْمَت	ت..... د	ت..... مَت
إِتَو	تَوْن	إ.....	..... ن
تَتَو	تَوْنَت	ت.....	..... نَت

Conjugation of "Irregular" Verbs

كَ – to be

كَيخ	نَكَا	..... يَخ	..... ا
تَكَيْد	تَكَام	ت..... يَد	ت..... ا م
تَكَيْد	تَكَامَت	ت..... يَد	ت..... ا مَت
إَكَا	كَان	إ..... ا	..... ا ن
تَكَا	كَانَت	ت..... ا	..... ا نَت

"Regular" verbs have 2 types:

- A. The simple imperative stem doesn't change when conjugated.
- B. The simple imperative stem does change when conjugated.

"Irregular" verbs have 2 types:

- A. The simple imperative stem doesn't change when conjugated.
- B. The simple imperative stem does change when conjugated.

Thus, to conjugate a verb you must learn its simple imperative form and its third person masculine singular conjugated form. This latter information will enable you to determine the stem used in conjugation and whether or not the verb is conjugated in the "regular" style or the "irregular" style.

Knowing the simple imperative form will enable you to conjugate the verb in its future tense, conditional tense, as the second verb when two verbs are together (as in "I want to do something."), and when a series of past tense verbs are linked together in succeeding sentences (In English we connect these sentences by "and." In Tamazight they are connected by changing the verb conjugation.).

These will all be covered in future lessons, but briefly, the form for these above situations is the simple imperative form (with no stem change) plus the regular verb prefixes and suffixes.

"Regular" verbs have 2 types:

A. The simple imperative stem doesn't change when conjugated.

Examples:

3rd Masc. Sing. Form	Simple Impt. Form
إِنِّي	نِي to get in, on
إِبِّي	بِّي to cut
إِتُّو	تُّو to forget
إِفْهَم	فْهَم to understand
إِسْقَسَا	سْقَسَا to ask
إِعَاوَن	عَاوَن to help
إِغُودَا	غُودَا to be good
يَاغ	أَغ to be lit (and many other meanings)
إِغِي	غِي to be able
يَاوُ	أَوُ to write
إِثْخَز	ثْخَز to go down
إِجِّي	جِّي to get better
يَاغُول	أَغُول to become or to go back

B. The simple imperative stem does change when conjugated.

Examples:

3rd Masc. Sing. Form	Simple Impt. Form
إِوْسِي (يُوسِي)	أَسِي to pick up
إِوْمَن س (يُومَن س)	أَمَن س to believe
إِوَزَن (يُوزَن)	أَزَن to send
إِمَّوَت	مَّت to die
إِوَلِي (يُولِي)	أَلِي to go up
إِوَف (يُوف)	أَف to be better

"Irregular" verbs have 2 types:

- A. The simple imperative stem doesn't change when conjugated.

Examples:

3rd Masc. Sing. Form	Simple Impt. Form
إِثَّا	لِثَّ to be (description)
إِثَّشَا	تَشَّ to eat
إِسَّوَا	سَوَّ to drink
إِسَّغَا	سَغَّ to buy
إِنَّغَا	نَغَّ to kill
إِزَّنَّزَا	زَنَّزَّ to sell
إِشَّا	شَّ to give
إِكَآ	كَآ to pass by

- B. The simple imperative stem does change when conjugated.

Examples:

3rd Masc. Sing. Form	Simple Impt. Form
إِلَّا	إِلِّي to be (location)
إِنَّا	إِنِّي to say
إِدَّا	دَوَّ to go
إِبَّنَا	بَنَوَّ to build
إِبْدَا	بَدَوَّ to begin
إِبْضَا	بَضَوَّ to divide
إِعْنَا	عَنَوَّ aller, se porter
إِخَا	خَوَّ to be bad, mean
إِرَا	إِرِّي to want
إِوَفَا (يُوفَا)	أَفَّ to find
إِوَدَّجَا (يُودَّجَا)	أَدَّجَّ to let, permit

The Preposition شِ (in)

in us	دِيكُنْخ	in me	دِيكُنْي
in you (m.pl.)	دِيكُنْ	in you (m.s.)	دِيكُنْش
in you (f.pl.)	دِيكُنْت	in you (f.s.)	دِيكُنْم
in them (m.)	دِيكُنْسَن	in him, in it (m.)	دِيكُنْس
in them (f.)	دِيكُنْسَنْت	in her, in it (f.)	دِيكُنْس

This preposition has the same pronoun endings as the preposition غَر . Compare with the following:

غورُنْخ	غوري
غورُنْ	غورُش
غورُنْت	غورُم
غورُسَن	غورُس
غورُسَنْت	غورُس

One other item concerns the pronunciation of the various forms of the preposition شِ plus pronouns. We will choose to write them as they are above, all with a شِ . However, that is not how they all sound. When the شِ encounters a voiced sound (the "i," the "m," the "n," and the "u"), it stays a "g" sound. However, when the شِ encounters an unvoiced sound (the "š" and the "s"), it becomes a "y" sound or in some dialects a "k" sound, which is the voiceless equivalent of the "g" sound. Thus, the following are phonetically how the words sound, even though we will always write the words with a شِ . See the pronunciation chart on the following page.

no change				digi	ديڭي
	dikk	ديكّ	or	diys	دييش
no change				digm	ديڭم
	diks	ديكس	or	diys	دييس
	diks	ديكس	or	diys	دييس
no change				digneḥ	ديڭنخ
no change				digun	ديڭن
no change				digunt	ديڭنت
	diksen	ديكسن	or	diysen	دييسن
	diksant	ديكسنت	or	diysent	دييسنت

Note that "diys" is not the same as "dis." The "y" is pronounced.

Some sample sentences with ڭي :

1. يون ديڭسن — one of them (m.)
2. اَمْرِيَان ديڭسن — the youngest of them [two brothers]
3. ديڭنخ اَعْدَار. — There's a traitor among us.
4. ديڭي اَصَمِيض. — I'm cold.
5. ديڭس تاوولا. — He has a fever.
6. تَمْدِينَت ن نيس، ديڭس لَبْحَر. — The city of Nice has a beach.
7. ماي ديڭس اِلَان؟ — What's in it [a purse, a bag, for example]?
8. ور ديڭس والو. — He has nothing wrong. ما فيه والو.
9. ماي ديڭسن؟ — What's wrong with them (m.)? اَش فيهم؟
10. لا باس غورس؟ لا باس ديڭس. — Is he okay? He's okay.

Independent Demonstrative Pronouns

these (ones) (m.)	wi	وي	this (one) (m.)	wa	وا
these (ones) (f.)	ti	تي	this (one) (f.)	ta	تا
those (ones) (m.)	win	وين	that (one) (m.)	wan	وان
those (ones) (f.)	tin	تين	that (one) (f.)	tan	تان

These forms almost always have a specific noun antecedent and are often translated as “this one,” “these (ones),” e.g., تا تَغُودا (ta tğuda): “This one (f.) is good.”

These forms are scarcely ever used in the sense of English “this” or “that” referring to a general situation. Generally, without a specific noun antecedent the usage is أَيَا (aya) this (thing) and أَيْنَا (aynna) that (thing). Compare:

What's this (one)?	matta wa?	مَتَا وَا؟
What is this? (situation, affair)	matta wia?	مَتَا وِيَا؟
I want that one.	riḡ wan.	رِيخ وَان.
That's what I want.	aynna ay riḡ.	أَيْنَا أَي رِيخ.

Neutral

What's this? مَتَا وِيَا؟

Take off that thing. كَسْ أَيْنَا.

I want that thing. رِيخ أَيْنَا.

(The dependent form of أَيَا (aya) is أَيَا (uya). When used with the word مَتَا, the resulting pronunciation is وِيَا (wia).)

this (thing) this (thing) (near to the speaker)	aya ayad (هاد الشّي in Moroccan Arabic)	أَيَا أَيَاد
that (thing) (far from the speaker, near to the person spoken to)	aynna (داك الشّي in Moroccan Arabic)	أَيْنَا
that (thing) (far from both the speaker and the person spoken to)	ayin (داك الشّي in Moroccan Arabic)	أَيِين

here	da or dad	دا or داد
there right there	din dinaغ or dis	دين ديناغ or ديس

Some dialects don't use the word ديناغ .
Instead, they use the word ديس .

ديناغ or ديس points to a specific spot away from the speaker, e.g.,

Dig the ditch right there (in that specific spot).	غez targʷa dinaغ.	غَز تَرَّڭا ديناغ.
---	-------------------	--------------------

to here	غer da	غَر دا
to there	غer din	غَر دين
up to here, until here	al da	آل دا
up to there, until there	al din	آل دين
from here	zi da	زِي دا
from there	zi din	زِي دين

Bring bread (to) here.	awid aغrum غer da.	اَوِيد اَغْرُوم غَر دا.
Leave it (m.) until (we get) there.	adjt al din.	اَدَجْت آل دين.
Dig from here (up) to there.	غez zi da al din.	غَز زِي دا آل دين.

These demonstratives are combinations of a pronoun and a preposition. The existing prepositions that can be used with these pronouns are “غer” (to), “al” (until), and “zi” (from). Common regional variations for these three prepositions are:

for غَر (the preposition of movement “to”): س for آل (“until”): آر
for زِي (“from”): سَاك or زَاك

Negation of the Past Tense Form

- How to make the negation of the past tense form: Add ور in front of the verb.
- General rule: In most cases, the negative word "ur" affects the final vowel of the verb stem in the past tense form. It changes the short vowel "e" (a fatha) or the long vowel "a" (an aliph) into the vowel "i" (either a kasra or a ya', respectively).

He didn't understand.	ور إِفْهَم.	He understood.	إِفْهَم.
He didn't know.	ور إِسَّن.	He knew.	إِسَّن.
He isn't here.	ور إِلِّي.	He's here.	إِلَّا.
He didn't go.	ور إِدِّي.	He went.	إِدَّا.
ور نَسَّن	ور سَنَخ	نَسَّن	سَنَخ
ور تَسَّنَم	ور تَسَّنَد	تَسَّنَم	تَسَّنَد
ور تَسَّنَمَت	ور تَسَّنَد	تَسَّنَمَت	تَسَّنَد
ور سَن	ور إِسَّن	سَن	إِسَّن
ور سَنَّت	ور تَسَّن	سَنَّت	تَسَّن
ور نَدِّي	ور دَيَخ	نَدَّا	دَيَخ
ور تَدَّيَم	ور تَدَّيَد	تَدَّام	تَدَّيَد
ور تَدَّيَمَت	ور تَدَّيَد	تَدَّامَت	تَدَّيَد
ور دَّيَن	ور إِدِّي	دَّان	إِدَّا
ور دَّيَنَت	ور تَدِّي	دَّانَت	تَدَّا

- There are exceptions where the vowel change does not occur. These verbs must be learned individually.

He didn't die.	ور إِمَّوَت.	He died.	إِمَّوَت.
He didn't forget.	ور إِتَّو.	He forgot.	إِتَّو.
He didn't ask.	ور إِسَّقَسَا.	He asked.	إِسَّقَسَا.
He didn't see.	ور إِرَاعَا.	He saw.	إِرَاعَا.
It's not good.	ور إِغُودَا.	It's good.	إِغُودَا.

He didn't cut.	ور إِبِّي.	He cut.	إِبِّي.
He didn't help.	ور إِعَاوَن.	He helped.	إِئَاوَن.

Some general rules can be given to help identify some of these exceptions:

- A. If the final vowel in the conjugated form is a و , the vowel does not change.
  - B. If the final vowel in the conjugated form is already a ي , there is no change.
  - C. If the final ا of the conjugated form is part of the simple imperative stem (and not from the "irregular" verb conjugation pattern), then there is no change.
  - D. All "irregular" verbs (those that are conjugated like كُ and إِلِي ) undergo the vowel change.
4. For every verb you learn, you need to learn its simple imperative form, its third masculine singular past conjugated form, and its third masculine singular past negative form.

دَو	إِدَا \ ور إِدِّي	كُ	إِثَا \ ور إِثِّي
خَو	إِخَا \ ور إِخِّي	نَع	إِنْعَا \ ور إِنْعِي
فَهَم	إِفْهَم \ ور إِفْهَم	إِسِين	إِسِّن \ ور إِسِّن
أَمَن	يَوْمَن \ ور يَوْمِن	أَمَز	يَوْمَز \ ور يَوْمِز
مَّت	إِمَّوَت \ ور إِمَّوَت	تَو	إِتَّو \ ور إِتَّو
أَف	يُوف \ ور يُوَف	بِّي	إِبِّي \ ور إِبِّي
سَقْسَا	إِسْقَسَا \ ور إِسْقَسَا	رَاعَا	إِرَاعَا \ ور إِرَاعَا
عَاوَن	إِئَاوَن \ ور إِئَاوَن	أَغ	يَاغ \ ور إِيَاغ

5. The negative "I don't have"

To form the negative, you simply add ور in front of the verb, although you must remember to change the vowel in the verb. Note the following examples:

I don't have a son.	ور إِلِّي غوري أَرْبَا.
I don't have an egg.	ور تَلِّي غوري تَغْلَايْت.
I don't have water.	ور لَّيْن غوري وَاْمَان.
I don't have eggs.	ور لَّيْنْت غوري تَغْلَاي.

Negation of Past Tense

The negative word “ur” affects the final vowel of the verb stem in the past tense. It changes the short vowel “e” (a fatha) or the long vowel “a” (an aliph) into the vowel “i” (either a kasra or a ya', respectively). This is true for most verbs, but there are verbs in which the vowel does not change. These latter exceptions must be learned individually.

Examples:

He cut the grass.	imger.	إِمْغَر.
He didn't cut the grass.	ur imgir.	وَرِ إِمْغِر.

He ran.	irwel.	إِرْوَل.
He didn't run.	ur irwil.	وَرِ إِرْوِل.

He got a letter.	yumez tabratt.	يَوْمَزْ تَبْرَاتْ.
He didn't get a letter.	ur yumiz tabratt.	وَرِ يَوْمِزْ تَبْرَاتْ.

He left today.	idda assa.	إِدَّا أَسَّا.
He didn't leave today.	ur iddi assa.	وَرِ إِدِّي أَسَّا.

Is Haddou there?	is illa haddou?	إِسْ إِلَّا حَدَّوْ؟
No, he's not here.	uhu, ur illi.	وَهُوْ، وَرِ إِلِّي.

They (m.) want water.	ran aman.	رَانَ أَمَانَ.
They don't want water.	ur rin aman.	وَرِ رِينَ أَمَانَ.

Note some exceptions:

He asked Moha.	iseqsa muḥa.	إِسْقَسَا مَوْحَى.
He didn't ask Moha.	ur iseqsa muḥa.	وَرِ إِسْقَسَا مَوْحَى.

He saw the man.	iraḥa aryaz.	إِرَاعَا أَرْيَازَ.
He didn't see the man.	ur iraḥa aryaz.	وَرِ إِرَاعَا أَرْيَازَ.
